PREFACE

The need for a comprehensive survey of the literature on swimming and its related subjects first became evident through numerous requests from interested persons in several countries. The many selected bibliographies which have been compiled have served as valuable reference lists, but no complete bibliography has existed in the field of aquatics. The potential value which lay in such a compilation was envisioned, and work on this book was begun.

Extensive search disclosed a large volume of material. Some has been known and used; some has been conceded little attention because of obscure sources; and some, pertinent to the subject, has been collected from the literature of widely divergent fields. Thousands of titles were assembled. General grouping of titles by subjects was followed by elaborate subdivisions and extensive cross references. Finally an orderly arrangement by subjects was achieved, and author and subject entries were incorporated into one alphabetical listing. The bibliographical plan used by the American Medical Association in the Quarterly Cumulative Index Medicus was followed throughout this bibliography.

In spite of the fact that every effort was made to secure accurate information and rectify discrepancies, a number of irregularities persisted. In several cases details of bibliographical citations varied decidedly as recorded in different sources. The citations used in this bibliography were verified from authentic sources if possible, but in a few cases it became necessary either to delete questionable references or to choose data which seemed most reliable. Thus, unavoidable possibility for incompleteness or error ensued.

Due to the impossibility of securing copies of a number of books and articles, it was necessary to rely entirely upon their titles for classification. Since titles often are misleading, the possibility of erroneous or incomplete classification exists.

Selected references from related fields were used when, in the opinion of the bibliographer, their applicability warranted inclusion.

The completed bibliographical compilation is supplemented by appendices on Films, Organizations Promoting Swimming and Sources for Equipment and Supplies. The bibliographical section consists of approximately 10,000 titles listed by authors and classified under 608 subjects. Material from 19 different languages is used. Books and pamphlets issued by 623 publishers, an undetermined number of private publications and articles from 645 periodicals are included. Appendices contain a list of 88 films, names and addresses of 92 organizations promoting swimming and an alphabetically arranged list of 496 products distributed by 45 representative firms. The bibliography includes material published up to June, 1938.

The compiler sincerely requests reports of any errors which may be discovered and invites suggestions which will enhance the usefulness of future supplements to this book.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

My appreciative acknowledgments are made to the thousands of individuals who have contributed to the literature in the field of aquatics and to the many persons not mentioned specifically who have assisted in this compilation.

The Publishers Weekly, the F. W. Faxon Company and Otto Harrassowitz of Leipzig have furnished essential records. The Quarterly Cumulative Index Medicus of the American Medical Association has allowed the use of titles from foreign languages as translated into English and prepared for classification by them. The Departments of Public Health of all states have assisted by furnishing materials on standards and regulations. The National Recreation Association has submitted numerous lists.

Librarians and many other persons in this country and in foreign countries have aided my search for records of materials. The splendid resources of the Library of Congress have been of inestimable value.

Dr. Hamilton Montgomery of the Section of Dermatology of The Mayo Clinic has brought to my attention a vast amount of material relating to medical research in this field. Professor Holger Nielsen of Hellerup, Denmark, has sent important selections from the literature of the Scandinavian Peninsula. Captain Bertram W. Cummins, Hon. Editor of The Swimming Times, of London, has rendered kind assistance for several years.

The keen interest of my students has been a never failing challenge. Especially, Jean Adamson, Mary Helen Bell, Ruth Crooks, Alta Ely, Norene Hulsey, Gertrude Perkins, Elizabeth Poer, Gwendolyn Reams and Cecile Thompson have worked untiringly.

My mother, my sisters and my aunt, Mrs. W. F. Tyler, have been unfailing in their encouragement and have helped in many ways.

Dr. Ethel J. Saxman has maintained a personal interest in this work since its beginning, and for her constant consideration I offer my deep appreciation.

Miss Louise E. Levy has been a constant adviser. She has shared countless problems and has helped immeasurably.

Miss Fannie Schmitt, librarian, Tuscaloosa, Alabama, High School, read the outline and parts of the manuscript and made suggestions which were quite helpful.

I am deeply grateful to Miss Emma Louise Wills, librarian of the College of Education of the University of Alabama, for many hours of reading of the manuscript, for valuable suggestions and for her personal interest; and to Mr. Eli Sobel for extensive translations from foreign languages.

Dr. Peter V. Karpovich has contributed valuable material and has made suggestions which have clarified exceedingly the final arrangement of this bibliography. To him I express my sincere appreciation.

Miss Margaret T. Little has typed the entire manuscript and has performed, in large measure, the voluminous secretarial work during the final years of this undertaking. No task has been too difficult, and her faithful, very careful and always cheerful work has made possible the completion of the manuscript. To her my deep gratitude cannot fully be expressed.

The cooperation and help of the publishers has been invaluable.

Instructions for Use

Subject and author entries are listed in one alphabetical index.

Complete bibliographical data will be found under the author listing. Titles under subject entries may have been translated, expanded, shortened or inverted.

Citations for articles give name of author, title, abbreviation for periodical and date of issue. Page references are indicated for annuals.

Citations for books or pamphlets give name of author, title, date of issue, price, number of pages and abbreviation for publisher.

Complete citations were impossible in many cases because of incomplete records of material.

Theses, posters, charts and photographs are indicated by the descriptive word used immediately after the title in author entries; after name of author in subject entries. Otherwise, the form for making these entries corresponds to that designated for books.

All titles under subject heads are preceded by a dash.

Titles which are equivalent to the subject under which they appear are omitted, only the name of the author being given. These entries come first under subject heads; they are followed by an alphabetical listing of titles.

Titles signed by more than one author appear only after the name of the first author. Reference is made from each joint author to the original author.

Example:

Brandsten, Ernst M. See White, Albert C.
jt. auth.

TREATMENT OF LANGUAGES

Titles of articles from periodicals have been translated into English for all subject entries, except in cases of unsigned titles, which appear in the original language, followed by an English translation in parentheses. For author entries, titles of articles appear in the original language if English, French, German, Italian, Portuguese or Spanish; translated into English from all other languages.

Titles of books and pamphlets appear in the original language for both author and subject entries in all languages except Chinese, Japanese and Russian, for which English translations are used in all cases. Under subject entries the title in the original language is followed by an English translation in parentheses.

CLASSIFICATION OF MATERIAL

Material has been classified under specific subjects as nearly as possible. Titles have been repeated under more than one subject when necessary.

A book limited to one or two specific subjects is listed under each of those subjects. Books treating many subjects are listed, according to date, under Texts. Example: "Art of springboard diving" is listed under Diving, Springboard, and not under Texts.

A few titles which could not be classified accurately under any subject included in this bibliography have been entered only under the author.

Unsigned titles are entered under subjects only.

In a number of cases section or chapter titles have been used to identify significant material which was not indicated by the title of the book. A note, stating that the title indicates a section or chapter from a particular book, has been made when this applies.

Typical author entries:

DuBois, Goddard. Nielsen method of artificial respiration. J. Health & Phys. Educ. Jan. 1936

Hobden, F. W. Art of springboard diving. 10s. 6d. 229p Putnam. 1937

INSTRUCTIONS FOR USE OF APPENDICES

APPENDIX A

Organizations Promoting Swimming—Names and addresses have been listed. If an organization has no permanent address the officers for 1939 appear. The list of organizations represented in the Fédération Internationale de Natation Amateur has been used as listed by the federation, with minor changes in abbreviations and punctuation.

APPENDIX B

Equipment and Supplies—Items of equipment are listed in alphabetical order. Names of firms from whom these items may be secured are listed under each item. A complete list of firms represented appears at the end of this appendix.

APPENDIX C

Films—Citations give title of the film, number of reels, size, sound or silent, price, date, distributor and, if available, information regarding the producer.

APPENDIX D

Periodicals and Publishers—These lists contain the abbreviations used in bibliographical entries for periodicals and publishers. Complete name and address, if possible, follow each abbreviation.
